I feel that the learning journey is endless, just like the never-ending spiraling in the design. The spirals represent the ups and downs of the learning journey that a person will have to encounter in his quest for excellence. It also represents the infinite knowledge that the learning journey offers, which is beyond human comprehension. I have learnt that the calculator can be a channel for my creativity and inspirations. Through exploration, I have familiarized myself with the calculator and can better utilize the functions of the calculator. The calculator is more than just a tool for our examinations.
