This design reflects a swan gliding upon a gentle lake. I chose it because of the simplicity of the image, but yet the complexity required in the details that bring it to life, such as the reflection of the swan in the water, as well as the ripples and shades reflected in the water.

To me, this also brings out my experience thus far with the graphic calculator as a learning aid. Simple as it is to use, I behold the complexity of its functions, and appreciate the intelligence of the device. Using it has brought mathematics to life.
