Mr Jacques Rogge is the 8th president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC). Sports are one of the most common passions shared by people all around the world. The Olympics is one of the most anticipated international sporting events which started out as the Greek ideals; the celebration of the beauty of the human body and atheism in the human spirit. As sports become embedded into the fabric of our society, we should actively promote the participation in sports among citizens in order to bond different members of society through sports, encouraging sportsmanship spirit and feed the burning passion for sports.
