This picture depicts a group of people linking arms and looking on. I have intentionally created a two-pronged effect to it to make the viewer ask “Are these people athletes or spectators? Do they support or loathe one another?” The Olympics is a sporting event of world renown and was created to link people of all nationalities together. This picture is my interpretation of the Olympics, which brings people together as well, despite their differences. I have learnt to be patient with technical problems and to piece small parts together to form a aesthetically pleasing jungle.
