I chose this design due to the reason that the definition of “sports” should not be confined within the narrow range of human activities. It exists in nature, in its most essential form of interactions between all creatures. This design shows a scene in which dolphins play happily in the serene, moonlighted night. Their carefree and cheerful manners accentuate the positive relationship between sports and comradeship.

It has been an enriching and refreshing experience to using this electrical medium to create art. Along with the trials and errors, I did have lots of fun.
